NanoM 2013

from Application of Nanomaterials to Commercialisation of Nanotechnologies

You are cordially invited to participate at the conference and exhibition in Homerton College, Cambridge

20th & 21st May 2013

Cambridge Nanomaterials Technology Ltd is inviting you to the NanoMaterials 2013 conference and exhibition in Homerton College, Cambridge on 20th and 21st May 2013 with an aim to provide a bridge from application of nanomaterials to commercialisation of nanotechnologies. The event is a binding platform for interactions between researchers, scientists, engineers, managers, consultants, investors, intellectual property and technology transfer experts from industry, research laboratories, government institutions, consultancy companies, law firms, investment organisations and academia. It is an opportunity to present cutting edge application oriented research and establish partnerships for commercialisation through interactions with experts in friendly and relaxing environment.

The conference topics are:

- Graphene
- Carbon Nanotubes
- Nanoparticles
- Nanocomposites
- Carbon Nanostructures and Devices
- Characterisation of Nanomaterials
- Modelling and Simulation at the Nanoscale
- Medical Devices and Nanomedicine
- Commercialisation of Carbon Nanomaterials
- Nanomaterials Manufacturing and Instrumentation
- Nanomaterials IP and legislation

Delegates are more than welcome to submit 300 words abstract for a poster presentation and indicate if they would be interested to present an oral presentation. The NanoM 2013 Organisation Committee & Advisory Board would invite authors of selected poster presentation to prepare an oral presentation.

More information about programme is coming soon.
